

Celebrate our Marvelous Moon 2025

The Moon, Earth's constant companion, has been a source of wonder and awe throughout our shared history. It inspires celebrations around the world, including those highlighted here.

In 2025, a total lunar eclipse graces the night sky on March 13th across the US. It's a perfect opportunity to notice these cycles and connect to the sky all the way to International Observe the Moon Night and beyond. Keep looking up!

TOTAL LUNAR ECLIPSE
March 13

The shadow of our Earth falls on the Full Moon and gives it a red hue. Learn more at bit.ly/25eclipse.

PARTIAL SOLAR SUNRISE ECLIPSE
March 29

On the East Coast of the U.S., pull out your solar viewing glasses for a partial sunrise eclipse. Or use a pinhole projector.

EASTER SUNDAY
April 20

Easter is the Christian celebration of new life and resurrection. It falls on the first Sunday after the Full Moon that occurs near the spring equinox.

STRAWBERRY MOON
June 11

The Farmers' Almanac reports berries blooming at the time of this Full Moon. Also called "Green Corn Moon". What is growing by you?

AUGUST FULL MOON FESTIVAL
August 9

In Greece, architectural sites and museums are open late as people have midnight picnics under the Full Moon.

INTERNATIONAL OBSERVE THE MOON NIGHT
October 4

This annual celebration includes local community events and individual observers all over the world. Join us at moon.nasa.gov/observe.

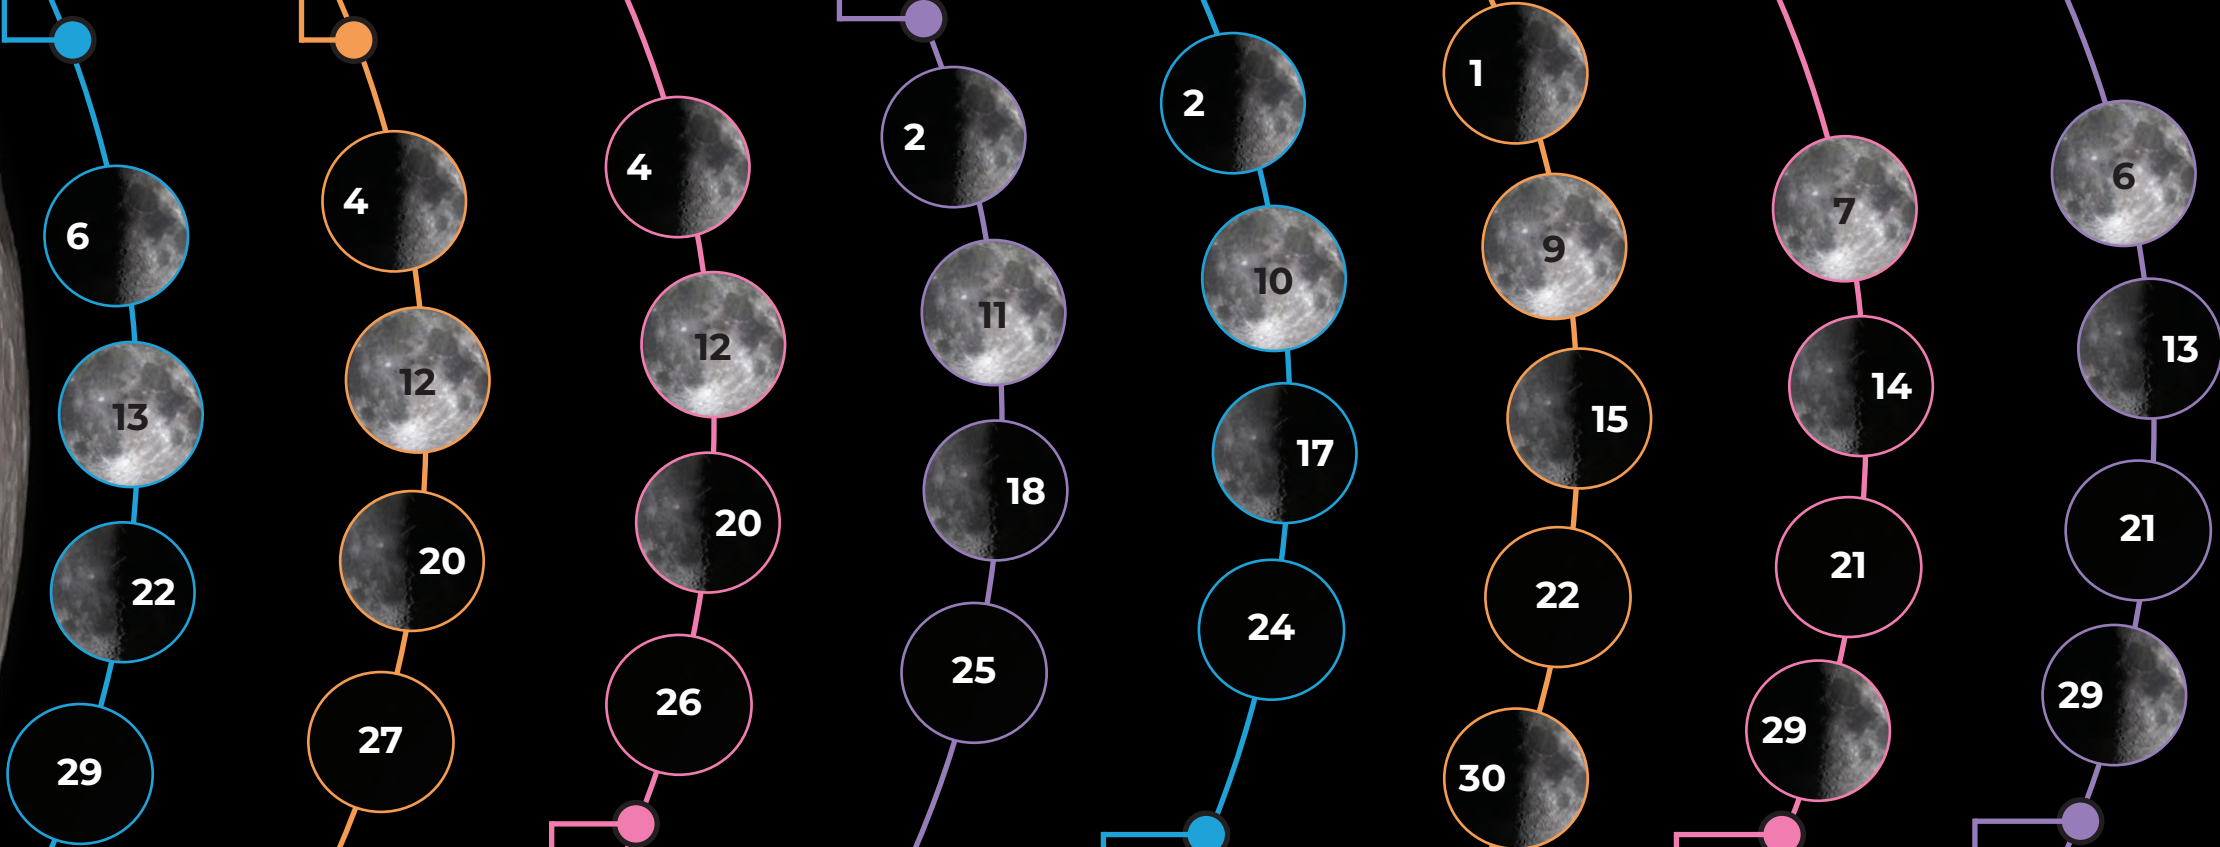

MARCH

APRIL

JUNE

AUGUST

OCTOBER

MARCH

EID AL-FITR
March 30

Communities gather to celebrate Eid al-Fitr, the end of the Muslim holy month, Ramadan. It begins with the first sighting of the Crescent Moon.

MAY

VESAK
May 12 & 13

Vesak celebrates the life of the Buddha, his birth, enlightenment, and reaching Nirvana. It is on the Full Moon of the lunar month of Vesākha.

JULY

APOLLO 11 LANDING ON THE MOON
July 20

On July 20th 1969, humans first walked on the Moon. Look for the Crescent Moon in the morning this week.

SEPTEMBER

ROSH HASHANAH
September 22-25

The Jewish new year, Rosh Hashanah, is celebrated on this New Moon. Apples are dipped in honey to wish for sweetness.

OCTOBER

MID-AUTUMN FESTIVAL
October 6

On this night, loved ones gather to celebrate the harvest and gaze at the Moon. Round Mooncakes represent unity.