Lunar Western Libration:

near Grimaldi and Hevelius, at the far western edge of Oceanus Procellarum

With binoculars or a small telescope, look just south of the lunar equator along the western edge of the lunar disk for the dark-floored crater, Grimaldi. Note how far it lies from the limb. That distance should change between April 12 and 21. How easy is it to see the craters Riccioli and Hedin?